

On one hand, the NAB "promotes" innovation through methods such as the Unidirectional Plug and Play agreement, while on the other hand it stymies innovation by seeking to stop satellite radio from expanding its services. I have been an XM subscriber since the first week it was offered and have enjoyed leaving the wasteland of commercial broadcast radio, for that is what it has become. Since we pay a subscription fee, in my mind the NAB has no argument about what can and cannot be carried. If the service was free, they might have an argument.

Please continue to let XM and Sirius have the freedom to innovate not only new technology, but also new business models.

Thank you for listening.
